Traction Company and Boulevard Company Have Come to an Agreement About Grading of Mulberry Street.

Today an important contract will e signed between the Scranton Traction company and the Elmhurst Boulevard company whereby the former is to extend its Nay Aug Falls line out Mulberry street and along the Boulevard to within 200 feet of the new orldge over Roaring Brook.

During the Archer regime the Tracion company formed an agreement with the Lackawanna Iron and Coal company which bound the Traction company to open and grade Mulberry street to Arthur avenue for the privilege of laying its tracks on Mulberry street and Arthur avenue to its present terminus at Nay Aug Falls. Mulberry street is the only desirable approach to the Boulevard and during the building af that thoroughfare and since its completion efforts to induce the Traction ompany to put Mulberry street in passable condition have failed until now. The Traction company under its agreement with the Lackawanna Iron and Coal company had two years to do the work and the latter's request added to that of the Boulevard people that the company open the street were without effect. In the meanwhile, access to the Boulevard was obtained only over the roundabout route through Petersburg

Elm Park Church Will Celebrate That Event This Week.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE IN PAST

Congregation Has Been Steadily In creased Since the New Church Was Dedicated-Those Who Will Take Part in the Services.

An event in the religious history of Scranton will be the celebration this week of the first anniversary of the dedication of Elm Park church, an edifice which has been justly termed the "pride of Scranton." Standing as it does in the foremost ranks of church architecture in the city it has much which endears it to the people of Scranton and the story of its erection and destruction by fire upon two occasions forms an interesting chapter in the history of our city.

The history of the church from its organization is deeply interesting. The original church of the congregation stood on Adams avenue and was built in 1842 at a cost of $500. At the time it was called "The Village Chapel," and while under the supervision of the Methodists was used by other evangelical denominations as a place of worship. The ministers who officiated in the Village chapel were Revs. William Round, E. Owens, Ira Wilcox, John D. Staf and, John Mulkey, O. F. Morse and H. Williams,

A More Imposing Church. In 1855 work was begun on the brick church on Adams avenue, and in about a year the basement was completed. Since that date the following ministers have served the church in the order named: Revs. A. H. Schoonmaker, Dr. George Peck, B. W. Gorham, George C. Bancroft, J. V. Newell, J. A. Wood, N. W. Everett, B. D. Sturdevant, J. C. Nobles, Philip Krohn, George P. Porter. J. T. Walker, L. C. Floyd, J. G. Eckman, Dr. J. E. Smith, C. P. Masden, L. C. Mullor, Dr. J. E. Price, C. C. McLean and Dr. W. H. Pearce. Four hundred dollars and a donation worth at least $100 was the lowest salary paid since 1854 and $3,000 the highest. In 1879 the Adams avenue brick church was enlarged and beautified at a cost of about $12,000 and the reconstructed edifica dedicated in January, 1880.

The Elm Park plot was purchased in March, 1891, as the site for the present church, at a cost of $30,000, and the incidents of the fires by which the church was twice destroyed are so fresh upon the public mind that a repitition is unnecessary.

A total of $306,000 have been spent upon the present church and the two buildings which were destroyed. The dedicatory services were held on Dec. 7 to 17, 1893, since when the regular services have been conducted with marvelous success. The congregation is constantly growing.

Membership of the Church.

The church has at present a membership of over 800, a Sunday school of 700 scholars and an Epworth league with an attendance of 500. The Women's Anthony Ketwrakis, Anthony Ketwrakis, ir., George Kuperunas and Joseph Kazlauckus, the four men who brutally assaulted Charles Bloch at the Polski hotel, Penn avenue, a few weeks ago, were arrested and brought before Alderman Post yesterday and committed to take their trial at court upon a charge of assault wth intent to kill. Emil Smith, of Hyde Park, became their bondsman in the aum of E500 each. Bloch, who has partialum of $500 each. Bloch, who has partial- to render Christian service, is doing very effectual work in a quiet manner. The Literary and Scientific society with a membership of forty young men is also of great value as being the means of affording instruction to the younger members of the church. During the past year 250 new members have been admitted into the church, the Sunday school has doubled its membership and the revenue of the church has increased two-fold within the short period of twelve months.

Anniversary Services. The anniversary services will comprise many functions of a social as well as a religious nature. Tomorrow evening a meeting of the members and their friends will be held, when William Connell, president of the board of trustees; A. May, secretary of official board; F. Reynolds, secretary of board of trustees, and William H. Peck, treasurer of church funds, will deliver brief the comedian who comes to the Acadaddresses on the following subjects: "The Yesterday and Today of Methodism in Our Midst," "Lights and Shadows in Elm Park Life," "The Possibilities of Elm Park Church" and "The Young Element a Factor of Power." The addresses will be interspersed with F. McDonald, Joe Harrington, James songs, duets and choruses. On Thursday from noon to 2 p. m. the anniversary dinner will be served and supper from 6 to 8 o'clock. The bill of fare will be most elaborate, including all the sold at 50 cents each.

On Sunday Rev. J. M. Day, D. D., chancellor of Syracuse university, a well known theologian, will deliver the vice. The Rev. J. Richard Boyle, D. D., will preach in the evening.

schools Will Close from Friday, Dec. 21, to Wednesday, Jan. 2-Mr. Notz a Democrat and at the Same Time a Protectionist.

A spirited debate over awarding contracts for furnishing coal to the city schools was developed at last night's majority and a minority report was presented by the supply committee and the matter was made still more complicated by exceptions of members who avored portions only of each report. The board was about equally divided and the majority report very finally adopted after an hour's confusion and controversy.

At a previous meeting Members Mahon and O'Boyle, of the supply committee, made a verbal report commending that Stephen Short be awarded the contract for furnishing coal in the First district, and the Consumers' Ice Third districts.
